TELLS OF HUGE LORIMER FUND

SENSATIONAL STORY IS RELATED BY CLARENCE FUNK CONCERNING GRAFT.

CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN APPROACHED TO MAKE $10,000 CONTRIBUTION.

U. S. SENATE MAY REOPEN CASE

Declares that Edward Hines of Chicago Admitted to Him that $100,000 Was Used in Electing Illinois Senator.

Springfield, Ill., April 6. — Edward Hines was named as the man who "put up" the $100,000 to elect William Lorimer United States senator. Edward Tilden was named as "treasurer" of the fund. The startling information came out at the session of the Helm senate investigating committee.

Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company in Chicago, gave the names, explaining that he had been approached by Mr. Hines to make a $10,000 contribution to the fund.

Mr. Hines, close personal friend of Senator Lorimer and one of his most active adherents during the investigation which ended in his exoneration at Washington, represented the lumber interests of the country. Mr. Tilden is credited with speaking for the meat packers.

Mr. Funk briefly explained that Mr Hines had told him that $100,000 was rushed to Springfield to procure Lorimer's election and that the International Harvester company was expected to be one of ten "big people" to make up the fund. Though the contribution was not made, Mr. Funk said he was requested to "think it over" and send the cash to Mr. Tilden.

The witness did not know Mr. Tilden, and it was with apparent reluctance and only after being summarily ordered to do so by Chairman Helm that he gave the name to the committee.

Reopening of the Lorimer case before the new senate is considered possible as a result of the sensational disclosures. Even before the committee adjourned telegrams had been sent to Washington informing the senators who had fought the seating of Lorimer of the new developments.

Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester company, is quoted by the Chicago Daily News as corroborating the statements of Mr. Funk.

Mr. Hines Makes Denial.

Chicago, April 6.—Edward Hines denied absolutely the story told the Helm committee of the legislature which is investigating the election of United States Senator William Lorimer, that he (Hines) had solicited a fund of $100,000 for the senator's election.

The rest of the evening was spent in carrying out an entertainment which Mrs. Reid Darling had planned. It consisted in writing poems or romances based on advertisements in a certain magazine, the pages of which were distributed.

The president, Dr. F. R. Gorton, will appoint a nominating committee to report at the next meeting, at which time the election of officers will be held. The anniversary of the league will be observed on May 14 with special services.

TAKES ACTION AGAINST BEER ADS ON BOARDS

The line of bill-boards which has so long rendered unsightly the environments of the Congress street bridge looking north were this morning removed. Behind the bill-boards lurks the story of a man who can match the publishers of certain newspapers who are sweeping out of their columns the ads of liquor men.

About a year ago F. C. Weinberg of Arbor purchased the land on the river side for a skating rink and likewise a strip of land over which to build a walk to connect his shating rink with Congress street. The bill boards which flanked this walk carried some liquor advertisements. Mr. Weinberg is a strong advocate of local option and found these ads so objectionable that he asked for the removal. His request was not acceded to and accordingly this morning the boards were summarily torn down.

Mrs. Jotham White and family have moved today from Prospect avenue to the flat above Schultz's shoe store on Congress street. F. W. Beranek, who owns the house Mrs. White moved out of, will now move into the house himself.

Coronation of King George Will Outdo Previous Efforts at Pomp

POMP and pageantry are about all there is left of royalty in England, and they are not forgotten when the chance is offered to display them. Such an opportunity will come in June when King George and Queen Mary are crowned. Every civilized country on the globe will be officially represented, many ruling monarchs will be present, and there will be a display of jewels, gold lace, crowns, diadems and scepters that will perhaps equal anything of the sort ever seen before. The picture above shows King George on his way to open parliament, and it gives but a dim idea of the pageantry that will mark his coronation. It is on such occasions as this that King Horse comes into his own again. The auto has almost driven him from the streets on ordinary occasions, but when royalty wishes to "show off" the horse is essential not only for drawing the royal carriage, but also for carrying the large escort. The automobile is a great convenience, and it can be made luxurious and comfortable, but it does not compare with the prancing steed with arched neck and glossy coat for pomp and splendor.

TROOPS MEANT TO WARN JAPAN

SAID TO BE REAL REASON FOR SENDING U. S. TROOPS TO BORDER.

ACTION WAS TO CAUTION BOTH MEXICO AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

JAPS TRIED TO COERCE DIAZ

Brought Pressure to Bear on Mexico to Give Them Coaling Station Until United States Put Stop to It.

El Paso, Tex., April 6.—From a man who is in close touch with the Mexican foreign office it is learned that the real reason for sending American troops to the border was as a caution to both Japan and Mexico regardless of denials.

It has finally become known definitely that United States troops were sent to Texas because of pressure that was being brought to bear on Mexico by Japan for a coaling station. It is stated that Japan insisted that Mexico must grant a coaling station to that country if it permitted the United States to continue in Magdalena bay and that Mexico was forced to withdraw the United States concession.

Following this, Japan began using pressure, it is said, against Mexico for the coaling station anyhow, and the troops were sent as a warning to both Japan and Mexico.

News continues to come from Sonora of casualties attending the fighting in that state. Federal Commandante Barron died as a result of a wound received in the battle of San Rafael. Captain Ocampo, wounded at the same time, also died.

Confirmed news of the death of Yaqui Chief Buli is received also.

CONDUCTOR AVERTS BAD RY. ACCIDENT

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 6.—The presence of mind of a conductor on a special D. U. R. car last night saved a carload of university students from a serious accident.

The Cabinet club, a group of students from Washington, D. C., gave a party at the Country club, and chartered a special car to take them there and back to the city.

About midnight, just as the guests were boarding the car for the return to the city, another car was seen coming down the hill, the motorman apparently powerless to stop it. Sizing up the situation, the conductor jumped aboard and gave the signal to start up the special car.

This was done, and while it did not avert the rear-end collision, it did lessen its seriousness, for when the runaway overtook the special the latter was going at such a speed that the collision resulted only in the smashing of the fender and headlight of the runaway.

No one was hurt, though there was almost a panic on the car among the students and their guests.

PROPER ADVERTISING A GOOD THING.

We have spoken before in these columns of the seemingly incontestable verity that, in proportion as a thing is a good thing and ought to be helped along, is it worthy of the serious business-like attention to its needs through the instrumentality of advertising. Traditions are giving way and practical results are proclaiming the wisdom of advertising religious matters. One of the chief assets in the successful campaign which the Salvation Army is waging is its persistent advertising. It advertises every meeting with a band, and it advertises in every other legitimate way in which it can. It has large placards and erects them on the busy street-corners and invites the co-operation of everybody interested in promoting the cause which it unselfishly represents.

Every secular cause recognizes the value of an investment in advertising to promote its business and to keep it going, and it looks upon a stated amount set apart for the promotion of its business through the channels of advertising as one of the most indispensable things connected with the successful conduct of that business.

Charles Stelzsle—a prominent Presbyterian minister, and employed by the Presbyterian church in this country to promote a better feeling between the church and the laboring men, because Mr. Stelzsle is a much-loved and widely-respected member of the labor union and knows the laboring men's cause, their sympathies and their needs as few do—Mr. Stelzsle is a constant advocate of the value of advertising religious matters for the sake of spreading their efficiency and application. He is unqualifiedly advocating the setting apart of a certain sum by the churches each year for this purpose, and we believe he is right.

We are not advocating this in the hopes of getting more money from the churches for running advertisements in the newspapers which we are editing, (although as our friends know, this would be acceptable), but because of the cause which we, in common with all our religious friends, believe to be so important that we would like it to reach its greatest efficiency as a higher civilization promoter. You have noted away from home no doubt illustrations of religious advertising in the street cars and on the bill boards and other places. We noticed the following in a large Sunday edition of a Jacksonville paper. It had the appearance of an oasis in a desert of materialism:

"DESPISE NOT THE DAY OF SMALL THINGS"

A little cog-wheel, hidden away out of sight in the midst of a great machine, did its work day after day, and year after year, unobserved in the depths of the machine, that clanged and vibrated while doing the work for which it was made.

Other wheels and parts often attracted admiration from those who looked on and saw how, with almost human intelligence, it carried out the thought of its designer and maker.

But the little cog-wheel, down in obscurity, was never noticed or thought of by those looking at the attractive parts of the mechanism.

One day the little wheel grew discouraged, and said, "Of what use am I? Nobody ever notices me or cares anything about me."

And so the little wheel stopped turning, and lo! the great machine, with a jarring, grinding sound, stood still.

"What's the matter?" said those looking on.

No one could see any cause for the stoppage, and when the expert mechanician was called, he said, "It must be some of the smaller parts."

Making skilful examination, he came to the little wheel, hidden away out of sight.

"I'm of no use," said the little cog-wheel, "down here in the dark, and so I just stopped."

"Now you go right on," said the expert mechanician. "Though your part in the machine is small, and may appear insignificant to those who do not understand, it could not go without you, or another wheel like you."

So the little wheel took courage, with this assurance that the master of the machine understood, and began to turn again,—and the machine went on.

* * * * *

Does your part seem small in the great machine of the world's work? And do you sometimes feel downcast at the, apparently, insignificant part you have in it?

Remember the great Master-Builder is watching, expecting you to do your part where you are placed. Meet His expectations, and be worthy to hear Him say, when your earth-work is finished, "Well done, good and faithful."

What is your part—what is my part—in helping to make the world better? No one can be considered faithful who is indifferent to the great movement in which the progress of the world depends.

The church of God is a great machine for good. What are you doing in it as a member,—helping or shirking; giving of your talents God has given you, and holding His dollars so tightly that they cannot fly forth on errands of mercy, in accordance with His plan?

Because your ability to participate may be small, will not excuse you from doing nothing.

"Act well your part; there all the honor lies." Do something, however trivial it may seem, and keep the machine moving!

FOREIGN

CHINA—While the imports into China from Japan in 1909 exceeded those for 1908, there has been a decrease in such imports during recent years. Although for lack of communication China has been unable to work its mines, railway extension and foreign capital will enable it not only to do without Japanese coal altogether, but to compete therewith in the export trade. No continuation of the trade in Japanese railway materials can be looked for. Manchuria abounds in sugar beets of good quality. Although Japan has long enjoyed a monopoly in matches, the trade is declining year by year, owing to the Chinese government's protection over the trade of its people.—Consular and Trade Reports.

Prune the Old Apple Orchard.

By Professor O. K. White, Field Agent In Horticulture, M. A. C.

THERE are in all parts of the state large numbers of old apple orchards that have been neglected for years. In a large portion of them there has not been any effort made to keep them in good, healthy, productive condition by pruning, spraying, cultivation and fertilizing. As a result the tops are usually full of dead or dying branches, crossing and interlacing branches and water sprouts. The foliage is unhealthy, and the trees have either exhausted themselves and refuse to bear or produce crops that are poorly colored, wormy, scabby and uneatable.

It has been demonstrated in many parts of the state that these orchards can be redeemed and brought back into condition in which they will produce crops of fine saleable fruit. Many cases could be cited where men have made them produce a net profit of from $200 to $300 per acre.

There are some orchards, however, that are not worthy of good care because they are so situated that the crop is often caught by late spring frosts, the ground is poorly drained, the varieties are not desirable, badly mixed or the trees are too old, too high or too badly infested with scale. In such cases it would be far better to cut the orchard down and devote the land to some paying crop. If the varieties are Spy, Baldwin, Greening, Canada Red, Jonathan, Hubbardston, Grimes, Wagener, etc.—such are in demand and readily disposed of—then by all means clean up the orchard and make it the most profitable part of the farm.

Not all the neglect can be overcome in one year. The first thing to do is to prune. The first year's pruning should be the removal of all dead or dying branches and all limbs affected with canker. If branches cross or interlace they should be thinned out. All water sprouts should be cut out unless it is desirable to leave a few to train into new bearing limbs by cutting them back and training them to grow downward. Any parts of the tree which cannot be reached by a twenty-five foot ladder had better be cut off, if possible just above a lateral branch and the cut made on a slight slant, so it will shed water. This "heading in" is necessary in order that all parts of the trees may be thoroughly sprayed and because it is so expensive and difficult to harvest the crop when it is up so high. If this isn't done, usually the apples are shaken off instead of being picked carefully, causing them to go as seconds or cider apples.

In cutting off the limbs great care should be taken to use a sharp saw, knife or shears and to cut off the limbs short and smooth. Generally it is unwise to cut off large limbs, but if it becomes necessary, cut up from the under side first and then down to meet it, to avoid the splitting down of the branch when it is two-thirds off. Any wound that is made by cutting off a limb over one inch in diameter should be painted with thick white lead to keep out water and air and prevent decay until the tree can heal it over.

The pruning should generally be done in March or April, before growth and spraying begin. This is usually the least busy time of the year, and then the trees have the whole season to heal over the wounds. Excessive pruning will result in a great growth of water sprouts and often lessen the bearing ability of the tree for some time.

The only absolute rules which can be given for trimming are:

1. Prune before spring farm work begins.
2. Remove all dead and interlacing limbs.
3. Make all cuts parallel with and as close as possible to the limb from which the branch is cut.
4. Paint all wounds over one inch in diameter.

DISADVANTAGES AND BENEFITS OF WEEDS.

Some of the Disadvantages.

1. They rob cultivated plants of nutriment.
2. They injure crops by crowding and shading.
3. They retard the work of harvesting grain by increasing the draft and by extra wear of machinery.

2. In occupying the soil after a crop has been removed they prevent the loss of fertility by shading the ground.
3. Some of them furnish food for birds in winter. DR. W. J. BEAL.

LEARNING TO LIKE POETRY

Dean of Salisbury Points Out the Way In Which a Taste For It May Be Cultivated.

"I have no patience," said the dean of Salisbury, in a recent address, "with people who ostentatiously say they do not care for some of the loftiest products of the human mind. If you have not, at present, a liking for poetry," added the dean, "then make one."

But how? Choose a poet who is generally acknowledged to be a true poet, the speaker went on to say, and "then every day, even if it be but for five minutes, read a page carefully, noting every suggestive word and visualizing every scene." The important word in that advice is the word "carefully." Poetry must be read carefully or it were betterunread. Its beauties should be looked for, for the subtiest and sweetest beauties are not those that hit you in the eye. Read carefully and read honestly. Don't, for heaven's sake, make any pretense of enjoying something you do not enjoy or of seeing beauty that you do not see. Better far never read a line than to do that. But hunt for something that really appeals to you, and when you find it tie it to you and make it yours, if it is nothing more than a happy phrase. You will be surprise to find how quickly you will grow adept in the search for such beauties, even as a schoolgirl grows adept in the search of four-leaf clovers or an archaeologist in the search for flint arrowheads.—Current Literature.

SHE GOT CHRISTMAS MONEY

How Bill's Poor Wife Caught Him In a Saloon and Obtained a Generous Contribution.

Now, this is a true story.

Bill is known everywhere as a "good fellow." He has his faults, but his heart is in the right place—that's what everybody says. Nobody ever came to him for help and got turned down. He had a family; none of our crowd had ever seen his family, but we knew he must be good to them, even though he never did appear to go home.

One evening five or six good fellows were sitting in the back room of a downtown saloon, and Bill was telling a story. A woman entered. She had a dark shawl over her head and we couldn't see her face, but she came directly to our table. "Gentlemen," she said, "Christmas is coming, and I have nothing for the little ones. Can you help?"

Of course it was Bill who responded first. He jumped up and plunged his hand into his pocket. We could hear the rustle of bills, and we knew that something more than mere silver had found its way into the trembling hand. Bill was blushing when he came back to us. We were shamed into offering something, but he would have none of it. He seemed confused—a little ashamed of his charity—but he wouldn't let us help. And it was just like Bill to change the subject and go right on with his story.

And the woman? Oh, that was Bill's wife. We found out later that that was about the only way she could ever get any money out of him.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Prayer Ten Centuries Old.

Among the documents and manuscripts taken by the Pelliot Mission of France from a cave in Chinese Turkestan, where they had lain during ten centuries, is a curious manuscript recorded by the French Academy of Sciences. The manuscript is in one of the oldest known Hebrew texts. It is a prayer formed of passages taken from the Psalms and from the prophets, written in beautiful square Hebrew, with a very rudimentary system of vocalization. Evidently the manuscript was carried on the person of the man who owned it. Hebrew scholars believe that the document dates from the eighth or ninth century of the Christian era; and that it belonged to a pious Jewish merchant of Arabia. No such paper was known in Arabia in either the eighth or the ninth century, therefore it is supposed that the manuscript was transcribed for its owner when he was in China, where such paper was to be found.—Harper's Weekly.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Ypsilanti Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what an Ypsilanti citizen says:

Charles Fletcher, 415 W. Congress St., Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "As the result of kidney trouble, my health became much run down. I was bothered a great deal by pains in the small of my back and kidney's and I attributed my complaint to constant riding on the wagon. When I was on my feet I did not notice the trouble so much. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and highly colored. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills I was led to procure a box at Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s Drug Store and begin their use. I was careful to follow the directions closely and I received relief in a short time. Since then I have been in the best of health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Which is the STIFF STAY Fence?
This picture shows why Jackson Stiff Stay Fence is the best.
The Stay wires are made from the same gauge (size) hard steel wire as the laterals. The Jackson knot is made from the same material and holds both in a grip that never loosens. The whole fence is stiff and strong, and being made with mechanical accuracy it always "sets right." Goes up or down hill as smoothly as on the level. No uneven line wires.

Observe 70th Anniversary.

Mrs. W. A. Collins celebrated her 70th anniversary Saturday, April 1. Friends kindly remembered her with letters, books, flowers, potted plants, among the number being a fern from the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church, and a postcard shower, 66 cards in all being received. Her children and grandchildren from Detroit, Lansing and Ann Arbor came home in memory of the day. A reception was at first planned but on account of the inclement weather the idea was abandoned and the post card and letter showers substituted. Twenty years ago she was given a pleasant surprise party in honor of her birthday at which time she was presented with a pair of gold-bowed spectacles which she still prizes as as a keepsake. A number who were present at that time have now passed beyond, among the number being Mr. Benning, her pastor, and Dr. Fraser, her family physician.

Interesting Club Session.

The Ypsilanti Woman's club met in the Red Cross room of the Masonic Temple on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. A. F. Marvin was the chairman for the afternoon. Roll call was responded to with stories about Holland women. Mrs. Gertrude Erwin gave a paper on the royal family of Holland, speaking particularly of Queen Wilhelmina and her mother, Queen Emma. "Civil Service," was the title of a paper read by Mrs. E. B. Clizbe, which was based on civil service as practised in American cities. The study of history questions completed the program.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs

TIZ CURED HER QUICK.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crochett, of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crochett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She had not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This was remarkable. Send me five more boxes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

OLD SPAIN IN CALIFORNIA

King's Highway Created When Colonies Were Struggling for Liberty Still Stands.

It is not a highway in Spain—this Camino Real—that I mean to follow, but a highway in our own land, Spanish as any in Iberia, a road of infinite variety, long enough to traverse that peninsula, and running, as if it could there, from the desert wastes of mountain plateaus to the orange groves and palmettos of soft lands of sunshine.

While out patriot fathers were struggling for their liberty along our eastern seaboard, an old padre—"el infatigable operario de la Vina del Senor," as his friend and companion called him—was establishing his missions along our western coast. His chain of churches, when completed, was linked by this road, known to the Spaniard as El Camino Real, the king's highway—the only road marked by Duflot de Maufras on his map of upper California, published in Paris just two years before the American occupation. It still remains the lonely highway that it always was, the only road connecting the old missions—a mere long scratch upon the bare brown hills that skirt the sea.

The sole part of California that the Spanish exploited was the portion included in these Coast Range mountains, De Maufras on his map marking the great interior valleys only with the generic legend: "This country is even more beautiful than the inhabited portion of California; its climate is milder, it offers fertile fields, superb forests for lumber and vast prairies where graze herds of deer, antelope and wild horses."

The coming of the gringo changed all this. Mining, agriculture, lumbering, interested him far more than stock raising and the breeding of fine horses on the hill slopes by the sea. Consequently the trend of travel moved inland, down the fertile river valleys. The Camino Real, since so little traveled and so little known, has thus retained its Spanish character more, I think, than any other portion of the state.—Ernest Piexotto, in Scribner's Magazine.

DON'T NEED WALKING STICK

Americans Do Not Often Carry It, but Is a Matter Purely of Personal Choice.

Now that we are reminded of it, we realize that the great American people are seldom seen to possess a walking stick. "It's a small thing," writes an essayist in a morning paper, "the absence of the walking stick, but it belongs to the American motto, never, in the hustle of life, carry unnecessary cargo." The idea is, of course, fantastic with the fantasy of transpontine common sense. The hustle of life surely extends to travel in the case of a nation which would consider itself degraded if it spent longer than a week in a complete journey through Europe; and when Americans travel they are the last to deny themselves the luxury of an extra bit of luggage because it happens to be unnecessary. It is common knowledge that they go on loading the liner trunks until the company's officials say "Stop," if only to collect so many more steamship and hotel labels to add to their already bloated store of these trophies. No. The walking stick is a matter purely of personal choice. Most Americans chance to feel no need for a walking stick, whereas we do. That is how the thing stands. When it comes to a walking stick the world must be considered individually. The physical weakling is quite likely to have a taste for a gigantic club; the enormously powerful man who snaps his Sandow developer before breakfast as though it were a piece of cotton may select for a walking stick the thinnest shred of malacca that money can buy.—London Globe.

WHAT THE DOLLAR BOUGHT

Sunday School Boy Earns Reputation as One Who Uses Thinking Apparatus.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, the well known editor and divine, addressing a New York city Sunday school, related an incident that greatly interested the children. He told of meeting a ragged, hungry looking little girl in the street on a wintry day, and when he questioned her she recited a pitiful tale of a sick mother and younger brothers and sisters without food. After giving her a silver dollar, the good doctor followed at a safe distance to see what she would do with the money.

"Now, children, what do you suppose was the first thing she bought with that dollar?" said Dr. Buckley. "Hands up!"

Up went the hands, and one child after another ventured a guess, but none proved correct. Finally a little boy, whose upraised hand alone remained, was asked for his answer to the question.

"A basket," he sang out.

"Correct!" said the doctor. "There's a boy who thinks! Now, son, come up here on the platform and tell us why you think it was a basket."

After considerable coaxing the boy reached the platform, but seemed unwilling to talk. "Go on!" urged the doctor. "I want these boys and girls to learn to think, too."

The boy still hesitated, and Dr. Buckley took from his pocket a silver quarter. "I'll give you this," he said, "if you'll tell us what makes you think the little girl bought a basket first."

"Be-be-cause," stammered the youngster at last, moved by the sight of the money, "I was over in Hoboken last Sunday and heard you tell the story there."—Harper's Magazine.
